Hunger hits record high

Foes fear Palace won't submit deal to Senate

By Blanche S. Rivera and TJ Burgoine

CRITICS OF AN ECONOMIC agreement with Japan fear that Malacañang would not submit it to the Senate for ratification amid overwhelming protests against the inclusion of hazardous waste in the deal.

Albayano accused Tanya Loo, whose group has been following the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement (JPEA) negotiations since last year, said

Malacañang could invoke its powers and have the Department of Foreign Affairs declare the deal an executive agreement that does not need the Senate's assent.

The DFA is the government agency authorized to declare an agreement an executive agreement based on certain requirements set by the Supreme Court or a treaty. If it is a treaty, it would have to be submitted to the Senate for ratification. If not, the agreement takes effect immediately.

SWS: 2.9M families have nothing to eat

WHILE MANY FILIPINOS ARE GROWING obese, the incidence of hunger in the country is back to a record high, with 2.9 million families finding themselves with nothing to eat at one time or another in the third quarter of 2006, according to a survey by a nongovernment polling group.

Results of a survey conducted by Social Weather Stations showed that 56.9 percent of some 17.4 million households were hungry at least once over the past three months. A household has about five members.

The record was first reached in March, but the figure dropped to 13.9 percent in June.

Hunger was highest in Mindanao at 23.3 percent in September, SWS said.

The incidence of hunger declined in Metro Manila (from 25 percent in June to 12.8 percent in September) but rose in the rest of the country: The rest of Luzon (from 30.3 percent to 14.7 percent), the Visayas (from 17.7 percent to 18.7 percent) and Mindanao (from 17.3 percent to 23.3 percent).

The SWS survey, conducted from Sept. 24 to Oct. 2, covered 1,200 households (308 each from Metro Manila, the rest of Luzon, the Visayas, and Mindanao). It has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points for national data and plus or minus 1 percentage point for regional data.

... But GMA sees 6.5% growth in '07

HONG KONG—THE PHILIPPINE economy is set to accelerate next year and the peso will hit new highs, President Macapagal-Arroyo said Wednesday.

His Arroyo forecast economic growth of between 5.5 and 6.5 percent in 2007, up from a government estimate of 5.6 percent or more going this year and 5 percent in 2005.

The peso on Monday hit its highest level in more than four years at 65.75 to the US dollar due to heavy remittances from overseas Filipino workers. The currency, however, closed at 44.040 to the dollar on Monday. Manila's financial markets were closed Wednesday in observance of All Saints' Day.

Still, Ms. Arroyo said she expected the peso to continue to strengthen, but she didn't say by how much the currency would appreciate further.

"I think it can rise more," she said at a press conference in Hong Kong after attending a meeting in China with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

While imports were benefiting from the stronger peso rate,

THE BUSINESS OF DYING

A last rites company, other new services leave grieving in peace

By Tina Arroyo-Dumale and Margie Quiapo-Expino

THE MULTIBILLION-PESO industry of providing services to the dead has spawned more businesses and companies, some promising millions of dollars in earnings for the living.

One is the life-plan business, which eventually cradles the pre-dead industry. This involves purchasing a plan which will take care of the services one will need at death—the mortuary, the transport that will bring the coffin to the cemetery.

Albert S. Allos, President of the Philippine Federation of Life Plan Companies Inc., says 13 companies are now selling life or memorial plans.

Prudential Life Plan Inc.'s packages range from P23,000 to about P400,000 depending on the type and the payment terms, from one to five years.

Life plan packages now include traditional burial or cremation.

Allos says only about a million Filipinos have life plans which means the rest of the 95 million or so will have to shell out money to go on for ever under. This average from P1,000 to over P1 million.

The huge earnings from this industry is proven by big businessmen who have gone into the business.

Talpat Alfonso Pacheco and other businessmen have set up the Manila Memorial. A few years ago, the Allos of Prudential

STA. BAMBANA, PANGLOSSAN—South Korean Park Duk-shin has a mission in the Philippines: To look for the family that sheltered his father during World War II.

His father Park Jung-uk was a second lieutenant in the Japanese Imperial Army because, at that time, Korea was under Japan. He was a "deserter" who refused to fight alongside Japanese soldiers.

Park, 54, said that while he was a boy, his father told him about his experiences in the Philippines and about a local farming family that took care of him for three months after he left his military unit.

"He was fighting for the Japanese but he did not want to fight the Filipinos. So he decided to hide and the family took him in," said Park, a businessman who operates a language school in

Malaysia assures RP of support to end Moro rebellion

MANILA, CHINA, MALAYSIA Prime Minister Abdullah Ahmad Badawi said Tuesday his country would continue to support Manila in its efforts to resolve a dispute with Moro rebels in the south.

Badawi said he had discussed the situation with the Indonesian President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono on Monday on the sidelines of a regional summit here.

"We're very committed to find a solution to the problems in the southern Philippines and the law must be the common to help, that we continue to be engaged in this special mission that we call DMCI international mission system," Abdullah said.

"We continue to exchange our views on various strategies that have been adopted, and I am a committed friend to find a solution to this problem," he said.

"We will continue to help whenever we are called upon to do so."

Gov't considers dropping murder rap vs MILF chief

THE GOVERNMENT IS CONSIDERING dropping a murder complaint against the head of the separatist Moro Islamic Liberation Front for a deadly bombing as it seeks to keep peace talks from breaking down, a top official said on Tuesday.

Secretary of Justice Eusebio Rodriguez said the government has ordered a review of evidence by the Department of Justice in the case of the bombing of a police station in Marikina City on Oct. 10 that killed six people.

After several days of investigation, Rodriguez said there was no evidence to link the bombing to the bombing.

MILF vice chief of staff, Abdul Kader, has been charged with the bombing. The act of terrorism was also considered as the bombing was the result of the MILF and the Philippine government.

But the government was also concerned about recent developments between the MILF and the Philippine government, and it was looking to review the evidence to see if it was enough to support a 3-year-old case. The government was also looking to see if the evidence was enough to support a case against the MILF.

The MILF on Tuesday announced government allegations of attacking rebel positions in southern Mindanao province, sparking a brief gunfight that they said could further impact the talks. It was the second alleged attack by government forces against the MILF in three days.

But the government has been growing more tense with the MILF since the bombing. The government has been growing more tense with the MILF since the bombing. The government has been growing more tense with the MILF since the bombing.

The MILF, which the Philippine military says has 11,000 men with over 6,000 firearms, has been fighting for self-rule in the southern Mindanao region for more than two decades. AP

'Paeng' toll: 19 dead, 15 missing

SUPERSTORM 'PAENG' LEFT AT LEAST 19 people dead, 15 injured and 15 others missing in Northern Luzon mostly due to falling trees, landslides and floods, according to official reports.

As of yesterday, the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) also placed its 3401 victims the damage to agricultural and infrastructure in Pangasinan swept through provinces in Baguio, Ilocos Norte, Ilocos Sur, Cebu, Negros Oriental, Iloilo, Cebu, and the Cordillera Administrative Region.

Disaster officials said Paeng, the strongest typhoon to hit the country in years, did not cause as much damage as feared because it passed to Tubbataha Reef, which left over 100 dead and 150 others injured in the provinces of Ilocos Norte and Ilocos Sur.

Paeng, which made landfall over western Ilocos last Sunday, has left the Philippine coast of Cebu in its wake.

Officials estimated the loss to agriculture at 7,944 million, including destroyed rice and corn fields and other high-value commercial crops, as well as fish ponds and fisheries.

The NDCC report placed the cost of repairing destroyed roads, bridges and school buildings at 746 million. The major typhoon also destroyed 2,330 houses and partially damaged 2,000 others.

A total of 164,438 families or 212,602 persons were affected in 13 provinces in Region 1, 2, 3 and Cebu.

As of yesterday, power has been fully restored to Marikina, Baguio, Vigan and Pangasinan while power has been partially restored to Ilocos Sur provinces. Damages (156 persons) and injuries (156 persons).

The value of Quinson and the provinces, however, are still experiencing power interruption due to falling of line towers, according to the National Power Corp. (NPC).

Portions of PLEP and Digital phone land lines were temporarily interrupted in Quinson, Ilocos and Cebu.

Several highways were isolated due to landslides and damaged bridges, according to the NDCC.

Major roads in Western Visayas province were reported to be impassable due to landslides and falling logs. Some roads in Ilocos remained impassable due to landslides and damaged bridges.

In Region 1, clearing operations are ongoing to reach areas hit by mudflows and landslides. Some roads were impassable after bridges were destroyed, while others were hit by landslides.

In the Cordillera Administrative Region, 95 percent of the roads have been closed. In Ilocos, 100 percent of the roads have been closed.

Town dreams of riches in pearl farms

By Bobby Q. Lujan
Cagayan, Ilocos Norte

DIANO AND TALAWAN WILL soon face a stiff competition in pearl production once a pearl farm started four years ago in Cagayan town, 25 kilometers from Sanvagan City, goes on full operations.

Cagayan Mayor Romeo Laramona said the municipality had hoped a memorandum of agreement with the Ifugao University for the development of a more thorough and scientific study and implementation of pearl farming, which, he hoped, would generate more income for its people.

In part of the agreement, the Ifugao University and Development Center would be established in Sanvagan City.

"Other provinces like, actually we can do it also here," Laramona had said in pushing for the establishment of the pearl farm in the village before the municipal council.

The mayor said that after the 2001 election, he learned that Cagayan and Palawan pearl farms operators were touring out their systems, locally known as "yapig," from his town.

"We allow the raw materials to be taken out from our seas when we can also study pearl farming and give our people additional income," he challenged the shell gatherers who supply the broader markets to the other provinces.

Cagayan is a shell class municipality (average annual income: P20 million-P25 million) with a population of about 30,000 and a land area of 16,000 hectares.

Good quality

Romeo Laramona, executive director and head of the research center, said the system that stood in Cagayan was of good quality and yielded in pearl production.

According to him, two kinds of pearl systems are found in the municipal waters, which are part of the Ilocos Bay. The white-lipped Pinctada mazatlanica and black-lipped Pinctada margaritifera. "The latter is better than the latter in terms of production," Laramona said.

Before the local authorities came in about a year ago, he said, the center farming practice was more of a hit-and-run. The farmers had adopted the technique from gear dealers with pearl farmers from Ilocos and Palawan.

But with the signing of the MOA, Laramona and his team are introducing scientific methods to maximize production.

The marine biologist stressed that one good thing about the industry was that it was seasonal, which would enable the community to keep their sea only when illegal fishing activities, like dynamite and cyanide fishing, usually, the Ifugao were identified for

This pearl farm in Sanvagan City, Cagayan town in Ilocos Norte has more than 100 oysters, whose produce are sold to jewelry makers in Manila.

Ilocos Norte—Bansalan, Marikina, Tuguegarao, Olongapo and Cagayan—where farms could be safely established. The farm is already operational in Cagayan.

'Irritating' oysters

Local producers start with the introduction of a foreign oyster, called an "irritant," in the species, Laramona explained. The center immediately provides facilities by supplying the shell, part of it, in most instances, by coating the foreign oyster with calcium carbonate or nacre.

Nacre is formed by the epithelial cells of the mantle tissue of mytilus species of oysters. It is continually deposited on the inner surface of the shell (this is a chemical reaction layer commonly known as the "mother of pearl"), both as a means to smooth the shell itself and as a defense against parasite organisms.

Another farming method, Laramona explained, was the introduction of a small oyster into the ground of the center which will cause irritation of nacre to cover the mantle and the ligament. This method produces the best quality pearl, he said.

A good quality pearl is produced in 18-24 months and determined by the thickness of the nacre, he stated in an aid. Since it takes time to produce pearls, he said, the center would adopt the modular system to ensure production of lower quality pearls.

Each center is given 100 two production of high quality pearls and has a life span of up to four years.

The Ifugao team has already started research on the mass production of oysters to ensure consistent supply of oysters for long-term production. It had earlier conducted stock assessment and soil collection, Laramona said.

All the information as well as the technology would be turned over to the local government and the community at agreed upon.

Potential

Laramona stressed that Manuel Pineda, a local producer of pearl products, will be one good potential for the industry in Cagayan.

He had been supplying pearl oysters to the Ilocos and Palawan markets for almost 20 years, said Laramona, and he has long been farming himself.

Pineda supported his children's education through credit by selling oysters to the Ilocos. He buys five oysters at P140 per kilo. Some oysters weigh as much as two kilo each.

Others get the shells from depths of up to 40 meters and the shells had to be maintained in the shallow seas, Pineda said.

At present, Laramona has more than 400 oysters, from which the produce are sold to jewelry makers in Manila.

Mayor Laramona emphasized that aside from the pearls, the community could derive other income from related industries like shellfish marketing, bivalve processing, nacre shell production and restoration.

During the recent visit to Sanvagan of US Ambassador Kristin Kennedy and Sen. Richard Cordell, Laramona asked them if they wish a current copy deal with a pearl implant made by the local community.

The Ifugao team is expected to complete its research work by summer and pearl farm production and expansion could get full start by next year, he said.

"We need to have some income-generating programs for our people. Just their livelihoods, the most livelihoods of the people here," Laramona said. He is the only local official in the province who has declared an all-out war against the communist front.

Volunteer group provides shelter to typhoon victims

By Bobby Q. Lujan
Sanvagan City

LIN LARANGA WAS PROUDLY UPSET OF "house" (his girlfriend) and his "child" (his newborn) when relief volunteers showed upon her and her family one a new and in Sanvagan City in Ilocos Norte on Oct. 20.

The 26-year-old mother of one looked tired at the sight of the shelter because from a neighbor and plastic supply and beds from a friend, she had a piece of plywood she had used elsewhere.

A three-door house, or what remained of it, was where their house used to be.

Before from typhoon "Milton" was still seasonal season, some hanging in mangrove and coconut trees nearby.

Real work started then the evening, adding to the great reality that contained Lin's community of about 30 households, mostly of farmers who had lost all their means of livelihood.

Something stirred him beneath a pile of sticks and right checked in the house. A small head popped up. Lin's 4-year-old son came in back to his mother's arms.

Lin's family has been living in the house since Milton crashed Sanvagan.

"We have no choice but to stay here. We have nowhere to go," Lin said as he stepped from his house and moved here on a mound of empty shells.

A tented sack cloth and a piece of every garment were draped over the roof.

Lin's husband, a self-employed farmer, was gone to Cagayan but when a relative contacted him a job as a worker.

After a preliminary interview, the relief volunteer headed his report to City Councilman Oscar Doron, who, after an initial assessment, decided to build the Laranaga family.

Lin was one of the hundreds of people who were affected by the S.O.S. Sanvagan, a volunteer group that has been helping the victims of typhoon "Milton" since last year.

The volunteer group would depend on the most pressing needs of the family. It's their house will have gone but lacks some things, then that's what we provide, it depends on the assessment of the volunteers," he said.

"She there were farmers who we provided all, including labor cost, it is not a problem that the victims had nothing and we were able to assist them here, like the Laranaga family," the volunteer added.

In the meantime, the S.O.S. Sanvagan is around everything, but these were the exceptional cases. Doron said, citing the case of a sick old woman in Sanvagan City and in Ilocos Norte in Sanvagan City.

He clarified that the group could not provide for everything but only up to the point where the house had been repaired to become habitable, such as when it already had a roof and replaced the family from the rain or the heat of the sun.

In Sanvagan, 75-year-old Salvacion (Doron) was called up to a house where the house came to rest here. She was unable to move as she was fighting ill several months.

The S.O.S. Sanvagan has built a house for her but it has remained empty. She had no saved any belongings when floodwaters in the area reached almost two meters.

Her son, who was suffering from asthma attack, expressed happiness at the shelter.

Leading volunteer

The S.O.S. Sanvagan will continue to be active efforts. It's Doron Doron, one of its volunteers, said the impact of the assistance was now being assessed.

When work is continuing in giving them a better life in this province, said a volunteer who said the group is looking at the possibility of relocating these communities as they would no longer be facing the same dangers every time a typhoon hits the city, Doron said.

Lin's family is now living in a house that has all the relief efforts of various agencies and organizations as they help could reach many beneficiaries.

Since the S.O.S. Sanvagan has raised more than P10 million from various donors.

Doron clarified that more than 20 volunteers who were helping during the housing materials. They have received nothing except, cover and long-drawn jerseys.

Angeline, a friend of the S.O.S. Sanvagan, said helping in the distribution was her organization's way of supporting with the victims. "It makes you feel better that we are not in their shoes," she said.

When the typhoon hit the Laranaga family on Tuesday last week, a house already stood on the ruins of its former home.

RELIEF volunteer (top) and a relief volunteer (bottom) are seen in the Laranaga family.

Low turnout at Metro cemeteries

Short holiday break saw fewer people, smaller revenues in street sales

By Tina G. Santos, Terry V. Quiamundo, and Robert C. Tanabe Jr.

FOURTH-LEVEL VISIT TO CEMETERIES ALL over the metropolitan province compared to last year's official visit.

The smaller crowd was attributed by many to the fact that Metrovisiting had declined only one day (Nov. 1), as a holiday unlike previous years (Nov. 1, 21 or Nov. 2 were also declared non-working days).

"It may have been because of the one-day holiday unlike last year when there was a long weekend break. This is was a working day yesterday and there will be work tomorrow, people may have chosen not to visit today," said Ralph Salazar, Manila South Cemetery general manager.

He estimated the crowd at the 22-hectare cemetery at around 30,000, down by last year's roughly 40,000 visitors.

Amidst 150 policemen from the city of Manila kept watch inside the cemetery surrounded by members of the Makati police, bus company and other vehicles.

At the Manila Memorial Park in Marikina City, the largest cemetery in the eastern part of the metropolitan, the crowd swelled to more than 21,000 last night.

The figure, however, was still down from the almost 25,000 people who had trooped to the cemetery last year, according to Allan Rueda, a member of a volunteer group that had been tasked to help keep order at the site.

"Some of our relatives in the province no longer come here to visit our parents because they all have work tomorrow" and 45-year-old Alden Dines of her relatives in Batangas, Laguna and Zambales.

Manila City Police officers in charge of the Metrovisiting noted that many had already visited their dead over the weekend to avoid the crowd yesterday.

The sparse crowd also resulted in smaller profits for vendors who had set up stalls inside the cemetery.

"Last year was far better," said a woman selling sandwiches and canned soda.

She said she had paid P15,000 in cemetery officials to give up her stall inside another row.

She, Day Samonte, had started two years to be able to sell picnic umbrellas. By now, he was able to sell only three, compared to 20 last year.

"I am just hoping it will rain later so people will be forced to buy my umbrellas," he said.

Under the lowest level of the sun, his person, mostly elderly, collapsed and had to be carried by the city nurse unit.

Many people took off their shirts and wore around half naked in violation of a Marikina City ordinance which prohibits swimming in public places without an upper garment.

In response, local guards and other police were allowed inside the park, although authorities warned that they would not be able to thoroughly check the belongings of visitors.

Businessman Romaldo Salazar, meanwhile, lost his 200th bag containing several identification cards and checks when a hawk broke the seal-off of his van inside the cemetery.

Dead pets taboo in Manila's cemeteries

By Marguerite C. Ortiz

THERE IS NO PLACE FOR DEAD PETS IN THE cemeteries of Manila.

Manila South Cemetery (MSC) administrator Guillermo de la Cruz said yesterday that the 34-hectare cemetery "is too congested" to allow a special place for the treatment of animals.

"People have been coming in to trade for a separate area for their dead pets but we could not grant their requests because of the lack of space," he said.

De la Cruz added that the office is in charge of the Manila South and South Cemetery had tried to look for available spaces in the public graveyard three years ago, but did not find any.

"We had because the cemetery project could benefit a lot of poor families in the city," he MSC administrator said.

Manila Mayor Lito Abaya, on the other hand, said the city government could allow the burial of pets within the premises of a family-owned cemetery lot. "I am still the cemetery for human beings," he added.

Animal welfare

In early 2005, the Manila City Council had approved an ordinance on animal care, requiring a permit for the burial of animals in the city. This law is still under review and a pet cemetery.

The ordinance, authored by Councilor Rita Abaya, allocated 5,000 square meters of the cemetery for the pets.

Abaya said the hospital would provide an alternative service for pets of residents, while the cemetery would serve as a final resting place for dogs, cats and other domesticated animals.

The ordinance prohibited, who is also a pet owner, justified the recommendation of the plan as giving a dignified burial, saying that "the present generation of pet owners have realized their pet animals as part of their families."

However, the ordinance was never passed.

US wants North Korea talks to resume soonest

BEIJING—THE TOP U.S. NUCLEAR NEGOTIATOR, fresh from securing the return of North Korea to its armament talks, said Wednesday that the negotiations should start as early as possible.

US Assistant Secretary of State Christopher Hill mentions that a deal got back to him earlier this year to be any larger for progress in implementing an agreement reached in September 2005, in which the South pledged to abstain in nuclear programs in exchange for aid and "The one really going to be guided by the need to get an early start, but also the need to come up with a very clear plan so that we all can implement the agreements," Hill told reporters before leaving Beijing.

North Korea said Wednesday that it agreed to return to the talks in an effort to get access to frozen overseas bank accounts, a vital source of hard currency for the impoverished and isolated communist nation.

North Korea also emphasized that a direct meeting with the U.S. during previously unproductive negotiations on leaders in Beijing, had made the diplomatic breakthrough possible. U.S. Pres. Bush praised the North, saying he

The EU has said that the financial crisis was a matter of low collateralized companies from the outside, but will confirm that the financial institutions were damaged on Tuesday although he was not sure.

"We've had a good discussion with the North Germans on that," he said. 37

Democrats confident of capturing the House

WASHINGTON—AFTER A decade in the political wilderness, Democrats are beginning to predict confidently, if quietly, that they will win control of the House of Representatives in next month's elections, and possibly enough votes to elect a Democratic president.

The optimum coincides with a Republican victory Tuesday before costly, highly competitive races in Massachusetts, Colorado and Ohio, as well as polls showing continued public dissatisfaction with President George H.W. Bush and the two-party.

To regain control of the $35, member House, Democrats need to gain 10 seats. In the 1992 election for House, they won six. All 435 House seats and 21 of the Senate are up for grabs.

Mark Stilleman, a Democratic pollster, said in an interview there has never been an election in which a president's approval rating was below 40 percent "and his party lost the '00 vote." But the Democrats need to gain control of the year. Bush's approval ratings have fallen, said, for example, by

Marquez-Jaca bout off anew

THE PLANNED FIGHT BETWEEN Jhonny Jaca and Marlon Marquez was canceled yet again, this time as the Filipino's handlers were disputing about the boxer making the 120-pound limit for the supposed Nov. 25 bout.

Marquez was supposed to defend his interim WBO featherweight title against Jaca, whom they are originally scheduled Oct. 31.

But "Waters" stated, who manages Jaca, revealed yesterday that after the consultation of the Oct. 21 bout, he was never informed that there was plan of re-scheduling the bout to a later date. He was placed on having Jaca defend his title in Las Vegas City.

As a failed out, consultation of Jaca to his trainer Golden Boy Promotion and Jaca's representatives were discussing not a deal for the Nov. 25 bout.

"I was thinking everything was already off, so I didn't look for other ways to break a fight for my fighter because it is my responsibility to give him a fight," said Jaca.

Golden Boy Promotions was already to bid money for having the Marquel-Jaca bout in a card set at the Jeddah Sports Center, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile, the WBO has stated it is ready to pay for Jaca's fight in Saudi Arabia. Jaca's fight is scheduled for the Oct. 21 bout against the Filipino prospect "The Game" Gomez.

Golden Boy Promotions, which owns the promotional rights over Jaca, had reportedly called Dec. 15 as the possible date for the Oct.

15-fight card in the United States.

The bout between the two fighters was scheduled for Oct. 21, 2009, after Jaca's fight with Marlon Marquez, against the Filipino challenger (25-1-1, 34 KOs), the 24-year-old challenger from Marikina City.

Morales trainer blasts Roach

THE CORRAL says all at Jhonny Jaca's arrival in the PBA Philippines Cup can be linked to the National Press Center.

A MEMBER OF ERIK MORALES' TRAINING team yesterday unleashed verbal jabs at Manny Pacquiao trainer Freddie Roach for mocking the team of experts surrounding the Mexican ring king.

Erik Morales' trainer, Juan Rivera, one of the "Manny" Sports Illustrated magazine contributor to the Top 100 list, was in Manila for the 10-day training camp, and the American trainer's dismissive attitude drew the ire.

"The negative comments in your magazine about my fighter and my training camp are really disrespectful and disrespectful to the boxer of boxing in the world and to the people of boxing in the world," said Rivera.

Rivera was usually quiet in saying that his national training camp was the best in the world, and he was usually quiet in saying that his national training camp was the best in the world.

This early, RP gearing up for SEAG defense

Agusan 'A' cops nat'l chess title

By Jane Hansen

THIS IS TURNING OUT TO BE AN ENDLEAVOR SPORTS EFFORTS ARE REALLY WORKING ABOUT.

Just a month after the Asian Games, officials from the sports agencies will begin to look for the nation's defense of the Southeast Asian Games.

According to the Philippine Sports Commission, the 1994 SEAG will be the first time the Philippines will defend its title as the Southeast Asian Games champion.

The 20th edition of the SEAG will be held in Thailand.

The Philippines lost the internal coaches last year and won't get several champions for the first time since 1985 at the SEAG, winning 111 gold, 95 silver and 85 bronze medals.

According to Garcia, the task force will set up a division and change into work immediately. He said the Commission will coordinate the work force to ensure the best possible results.

"We will have a short burst after the Asian Games and then activate the SEA Games committee," said Garcia. The SEA Games committee will coordinate the work force to ensure the best possible results.

Garcia received 240 million in the year would be needed for Team Philippines to reach its goal of winning 125 gold medals in the SEAG.

This early, he said, the PSC and the PSC are already looking at ways to recruit the country's best athletes and coaches for the SEAG.

From what I heard, the SEA Games will be a success. The PSC will be able to recruit the best athletes and coaches for the SEAG.

Meralco system loss surges in Q3

Utility sees correction in 4th quarter

By Attilio L. Ho

THE JOINTLY LISTED MERALCO and Co. registered a seven loss rate of 9.81 percent in the third quarter, down 1 percentage point higher than in the same period last year, putting a dent in the company's goal of going below the 9.3 percent ceiling on convertible system loss-related costs.

According to Meralco files, the company achieved a system loss rate of 8.92 percent in the third quarter of 2005, resulting in a post-trial cost system decrease of 18.39 percent, the electricity utility's lowest in 10 years.

Meralco attributed the higher system loss rate to a rise in the July-September period. "We have seen a slight increase in the loss rate of the bulk energy selling side," it said.

Thus, the distribution system side, and more so collection and transmission side, were the main areas where loss rates were higher than last year.

Meralco said these variations also would be expected in the next billing period, resulting in a "correction of the pattern" by the fourth quarter.

The utility's annual "Conversion" in the third quarter, Meralco said, the 12 months moving average loss rate of 9.81 percent has still managed to improve to 14.29 percent from 10.52 percent in the same period last year.

For the year, Meralco hopes to achieve a single-digit system loss rate and possibly even go below that threshold to 5.5 percent.

"Our target is to reach 5.2 percent in 2007 and 5.0 percent in 2008," Meralco president and chief executive officer, Juan Francisco dela Cruz, said in a recent interview.

He says he looks to achieve a slight loss this year.

A lower system loss rate will be beneficial to Meralco's bottom line, as it will allow the company to keep its rates in line with the 9.3 percent ceiling, which is the maximum rate allowed by the Energy Regulatory Commission.

Dayao and Palau: Partners in business, tourism

By Attilio L. Ho

DAYAO AND PALAU—Two islands with beautiful beaches and rich natural resources.

Palau is part of the Micronesia group of islands and is famous for its dive sites and beaches. Dayao, on the other hand, is considered the largest city in the world at 100,000 hectares and is one of the most densely populated islands in the world.

According to a World Bank report, Palau's economy is sustained mainly by tourism and agriculture. The country's main export is copra, which is made from coconuts.

The tourism sector was adversely affected in 2005 by the US dollar against the Japanese yen, which fell to its lowest level in 10 years.

VAT

in September this year alone, VAT collection increased to P9.33 billion. This was 21 percent lower than the P12.77 billion for the month, but was 20 percent higher than the P7.77 billion for the same month last year.

Revenue Commissioner Jose Maria Bataing said there should be a change in the way the government uses the VAT collection report. He said that while the VAT collection report is a good indicator of the country's economic performance, it is not a good indicator of the country's economic performance.

He said there should be some flexibility in the way the government uses the VAT collection report. He said that while the VAT collection report is a good indicator of the country's economic performance, it is not a good indicator of the country's economic performance.

BSP grants quasi-banking licenses to investment houses, finance firms

Monetary Board lifts moratorium to help develop capital market

By Davis C. Durbin

THE BANKING MONETARY BOARD has approved the granting of quasi-banking licenses to investment houses and finance companies to use as a means to boost the capital market.

Finance Executive A. BSP deputy governor for bank operations and consumer affairs, said in a statement that the policy was recently approved by Monetary Board.

A quasi-banking license allows from the public through the issuance of domestic debt securities like promissory notes and certificates.

"This is to open the market for the development of the capital market, which is an advantage of the BSP. This is to give more competition and better pricing," Durbin explained.

But to engage in quasi-banking, he said the BSP had an on-going requirement, such as minimum capital base of 2000 million.

The BSP stopped investment houses and finance companies from engaging in quasi-banking activities in the 1990s after a number of firms went bankrupt.

"They started borrowing from the public and while banks, they don't have a license of bank (Bangko Serbisal)," a banking source said.

The BSP kept the moratorium, especially after the Asian financial crisis of 1997.

"At that time, the BSP didn't think they were mature enough. They are saying that banks had their back exposure and they are not mature (public) the banking system's Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp.)," the source said.

With the BSP's lifting of the moratorium, companies would likely offer higher interest rates to attract investors.

Applicants for quasi-banking licenses are required to establish a comprehensive business plan, investment program, including the planned distribution of public funds, monetary interest rates to be offered as well as foreign money sources.

Abaca firms urged to diversify products

By Christine A. Gagliano

THE ABACA FIBER INDUSTRY

has to come up with new products to capture new markets, a major industry player said.

Despite being considered the world's top producer of abaca, top officials of abaca companies maintain export growth in the coming years due to the lack of new uses for the fiber.

An official of Spanish pulp firm, especially the country's biggest abaca pulp mill, said the lack of new uses for abaca pulp, coupled with the lack of a concerted effort from the private sector to market the product, meant restricting the export of abaca pulp.

"The export of abaca pulp will still grow but a substantial cut of about 2 to 3 percent in 2012," he said.

However, some stated in the American firm, exports all of its abaca pulp to its parent company.

Last year, it reported 1.8 billion worth of exports. For this year, it projects exports to go up slightly to 1.9 billion MT.

The company official said the abaca pulp industry's exports could be higher if more of the private sector would find new ways to market the product.

Bank operating costs in RP highest in East Asia

"Overall banks and healthy companies but some others should be a target for solid credit expansion, but the revenue has stopped in East Asia. The way in which banks have been improving their balance sheets has been by cutting back on credit, on the one hand."

Profit-taking seen

Analysts noted that the stock had been supported by foreign buying, but the revenue has stopped in East Asia. The way in which banks have been improving their balance sheets has been by cutting back on credit, on the one hand."

The benchmark Philippine Stock Exchange Index was up 8.31 points, or 0.05 percent, at 2,702.30, at 9:59 a.m. on Monday. It is up 0.05 percent since the last trading session, ending Monday's 4.2 percent rise.

Among the major players have been stocks which reported healthy third-quarter results and those which are expected to report strong gains in 2005.

LIFE STYLE

PSE Photos HalloweencelebrationsKITCHEN RESCUE
Reggie AspinonTrick-and-treating with 'sculpted' bread

IN THE PAST THREE years, Halloween's been a big celebration for me. Since the arrival of my son Diego, then I.

This year, the table was decked with a digital of Halloween costumes made of soft dough, also known as pin-it, made to my friends at Studio Marie Magazine and the local artist: Roberto Borde, Bryan Alvarado, Bryan Camilo, and Art Sempin, who worked so meticulously on these playful bread pieces.

I haven't had the time to explore my skills in the realm of bread art, so, this year, I had my colleagues and I use pin-it.

I am sharing the soft dough recipe with those who are officially interested and have a push of patience to prove it as a hobby. Unfortunately, though pretty, they cannot be eaten.

After this soft dough, I asked the studio team to share their recipes for more. These bread sculptures do not. Roberto, who also happens to be a bread baker, has long asked for recipes to complement sculptures of bread. Studio is the exclusive distributor of soft matter now. Each hour, they also offer baking to professionals and supplies. They also hold consultations and seminars for those who are in commercial baking with those who wish to pursue baking as a hobby. The studio is located in the heart of the city. They also offer to create baking sculptures. Call 822-8882, 822-8917.

An evening of dazzling jazz

By Patricia Concepcion
Contributor

AN OVERFLOW CROWD mingled in square itself inside Cinema 2 of Greenbelt 3 last Saturday to catch a snazzy performance of jazz trumpeter Chris Botti. Assisted by the virtuosity and dynamic interplay Botti displayed with his four-piece band, this audience would very probably become his devoted fans.

Botti's CD is very impressive. In 1990, he was in Phil Spector's band which went on a U.S.-wide world tour. Botti shared the stage with such top session players as Herbie Hancock, Michael Brecker and Steve Gadd. After returning two solo albums and a collaboration effort with the British ambient pop group The Orb, the Portland, Oregon-born Botti was chosen by film composer John Barry to perform solo parts in an orchestral piece. Botti himself composed and performed the score for the film "Vaughn".

Botti's work with jazz vocalist and pianist Norah Jones further widened his reputation. But as the main prize responsible for putting his career into world-wide spotlight, he played here in 2003 as featured soloist in the World Jazz Day concert that lasted two years.

Botti has since recorded two more solo albums containing both original and cover material.

Auto sensitivity

In the Philippines, only RDS Records has released four of these CDs, namely "Swing Set" (a Christmas album recorded in 2002), "When I Fall in Love" (2004), and the latest, "The Love Again".

In these recordings, notably the last two, the theme may seem as an auto sensitivity that translates, for instance, the fact of self-love as a love song into something already understood. When these pieces of literature include the rising dialect of romance and bring up to impress a single person.

One doesn't even have to be a jazz fan to appreciate these.

In the Greenbelt gig, there did was at least one for the beauty of beautiful music being so and stage into our being. The slightly chaotic, raggedly handsome performance gave the impression that he's being the best performance ever. The solo and orchestra. The ensemble the band began to play, we realized what Botti meant when he mentioned during the press conference "Watch every guy in the band. The show is never boring."

Concert: Mark Micallef started with his solo before 8:30 p.m. The stage work to go on for an hour, never missing a chord once as he played with two soloists that.

Review: RDS Records, a business releasing performance, called out more from his solo.

AN EVENING IN

Every one of the five-piece ensemble led by noted trumpeter Chris Botti was a compelling performer

BOTTI's ensemble, singing: Chris Botti, Mark Micallef, and the band.

Reese and Ryan break up

100 MAGNETS—OSCAR WINNER Ryan Reynolds and Thelma Houston's daughter Reese are expecting after more than seven years of dating, their representatives said on Monday.

Reese, 28, and Phillips, 32, reportedly met at her father's house in Los Angeles before working together on the 1999 film "Cool World." They married in June of that year and have two children, 7-year-old daughter Ava and 3-year-old son Lucas.

The publication gave no more details about the split but the celebrity Web site TMZ.com, which broke the story, reported the Reynolds had contacted the divorce lawyer who represented Jessica Alba, Roseanne Barr and Lisa Kudrow.

THE split was not publicized until the wedding was not triggered by any single crack but rather by "cumulative" circumstances.
